

Welcome to the Municipality of Favrskov

As mayor of the Municipality of Favrskov, I am delighted to welcome you to our lovely municipality and all it has to offer. Whether your stay will be long or short, I hope that you will be happy here.

About 46,900 people live in the municipality, which boasts a beautiful and varied countryside with open landscape, woods, streams and rivers and fields.

You will find that the municipality has several towns with a thriving retail trade, a dynamic business community and many educational opportunities for young people. The cultural life, clubs and associations as well as modern libraries and housing cater for every taste. In addition to our many primary and lower secondary schools and well-run eldercare services, we also offer families a wide range of childminding services.

The municipality is situated in the heart of East Jutland, close to Aarhus, the largest city in the region. This means that you are close to Aarhus University and many other educational institutions, the International School Interskolen, Aarhus's business community, museums, sporting events, shopping and a wide range of cultural activities.

To enable all citizens in the municipality to take an active part in democracy and to gain an insight into local politics, openness and transparency are keywords for the Municipality of Favrskov. Among other things, you can stay informed via the municipality's website, www.favrskov.dk.

I hope that this welcome pack provides you with useful information and prepares you for living in Denmark and the Municipality of Favrskov. Please do not hesitate to contact Citizens' Services if you need assistance or have a specific question.

Once again, welcome to Favrskov, and I hope that you will enjoy your stay here.

Nils Borring
Mayor
